Hans Reichenbach Collection

The literary estate of Hans Reichenbach, located in the Special Collections Department of the University of Pittsburgh Library System, includes Reichenbach's library, published and unpublished manuscripts, lectures, correspondence, and miscellaneous materials. Reichenbach made lasting contributions to the analysis of probabilistic reasoning; logic and the philosophy of mathematics; quantum mechanics; and space, time, and relativity theory. Through his career he was concerned with elaborating a cogent and consistent empiricism based on a theory of probability.

The correspondence contains about 9000 pages to and from Reichenbach; it ranges over his entire career. Those with whom Reichenbach maintained lifelong contact include Rudolf Carnap, Ernst Cassirer, Herbert Feigl, Philip Frank, Carl Hempel, Sidney Hook, Paul Oppenheim and Wolfgang Pauli. In addition there is significant correspondence with von Astor, Bergmann, Bertalanffy, Dingler, Dubislav, Einstein, Fraenkel, Frank, Freundlich, Grelling, Grünbaum, Paul Hertz, Hutten, Jordan, Landé, von Laue, Lewin, C.I. Lewis, Charles Morris, Nagel, Neurath, Northrop, Planck, Quine, Regener, Rougier, Salmon, Schillp, Schlick, Scholz, Schrödinger, Martin Strauss, Tarski, Vaihinger, Weiss, Williams, Zawarski, and Zilsel. This is not a complete list. The correspondence provides a valuable source of information about Reichenbach's personal and philosophical development. It also provides the background material for research into one of the centers of this century's most influential philosophical movements.

Reichenbach's manuscripts include many of his own notes as a student. Some go as far back as his university days in science and mathematics. Some of the most significant of these notes are those taken by him as Einstein's student on the special and general theories of relativity. There are four such notebooks dating from 1918. In addition there are his student notes on astronomy, Planck and electricity, Hilbert's "Statistical Mechanics" and "Problems and Principles," and more.

He also kept many of his lecture notes from Germany, Turkey, and the United States. The number of lectures runs to over 100 and provides a glimpse into the problems of philosophy and how he presented them to his students. Many of his lectures discussed social questions (during his student days), principles of radio, and issues in philosophy and modern science. The last of these were often popularizations of questions in relativity and quantum theory delivered on radio programs.

Although Maria Reichenbach has made every effort to see her husband's work completed, there are still hundreds of manuscripts which have never been published. In addition to this there are also notes, calculations, and diagrams used to draft both published and unpublished papers.

The working library of Hans Reichenbach consists of over 1000 volumes. All of the works are pertinent to his philosophical work with the exception of some volumes on radio, dictionaries, and other topics. Many of the works contain marginal notes by Reichenbach and occasionally notes by others. Some of the works in the library were Carnap's copies, such as volume one of Principia Mathematica (1924) by Russell and Whitehead, and Frege's Grundgesetze der Arithmetik I und II (Principles of Arithmetic, 1893). Reichenbach's first work, Relativitätstheorie und Erkenntnis Apriori (Relativity Theory and Apriori Knowledge, 1920), contains Einstein's approving marginal notes. Of historical interest are such works as Condorcet's Essai sur l'application de l'analyse a la probilite des decisions (Essay on the application of analysis to the probability of decisions, 1785) and Boole's Laws of Thought (1895). Many of the works in this library have notes laid into them.

The File Folder List

The following list preserves as far as possible the order in which we received Reichenbach's papers. We know that to some degree the order reflects Reichenbach's arrangement. However, since Reichenbach's death in 1953, Dr. Maria Reichenbach has been active in keeping her husband's works in print along with publishing many of his hitherto unpublished works. Consequently, the likelihood that the papers reflect his order alone is not very high.

The numbers assigned to the various folders preserve the order of the papers in the following way. The first three digits indicate from which box the folder came, and the next two digits indicate the number of the folder within that box. Individual manuscript items are also assigned numbers within the folders, but that information is not reproduced here. Thus, a folder labeled (013-11) would be the eleventh folder in box 13.

A summary page indicates in general way the contents of the various boxes. This information was supplied by the indexers. It should be only taken as a guide, because individual folders often contain a wide variety of materials. These general characterizations have been repeated for the reader's convenience at the top of the box lists themselves.

Acknowledgements

The File Folder List was prepared with the help from the Center for Philosophy of Science at the University of Pittsburgh and its director, Professor Nicholas Rescher.

The editor would also like to thank his assistants on the project: Mr. Saul Traiger, Mr. Michael Kremer, Mr. Alan Richardson, Mr. Jose Chiapin and Ms. Debra Logan. The advice and assistance of Mr. Charles Aston was also greatly appreciated.
